

TERMS

Parts of Speech

Noun: a word that names a person, place, thing, quality, or idea (examples: Maggie, Alabama, clarinet, satisfaction, socialism).

Pronoun: a word used in place of a noun (examples: he, she, they, ours, somebody). See “Types of Pronouns” below.

Verb: a word or group of words indicating the action or state of being of a subject (examples: jump, hop, skip, run, is, are, were, will be, will have been).

Preposition: a word that starts a prepositional phrase. In the following examples of prepositional phrases, the first word is a preposition: around the house, under the car, in the back, through the roof, etc.

Article: the words a, an, and the.

Adjective: a word used to modify a noun (example: the red wagon) or pronoun (example: ordinary one).

Adverb: a word used to modify a verb (warmly greet), an adjective (only three people), or another adverb (quite seriously damaged).

Conjunction: a word that links parts of a sentence to each other. (See “coordinating conjunction,” “subordinating conjunction,” and “correlative conjunction” under “Types of Conjunctions, Transitional Words, and Transitional Phrases” below.)

Sentence Structure Terms

Phrase:

A phrase is a group of words that lacks a subject, a complete verb, or both.

Examples:

In the dark

Finding the answer

Clause:

A clause is a group of related words with both a subject and a predicate (verb).

Independent Clause:

An independent clause (also called a main clause) is a group of words that has a subject and a verb and does not start with a subordinating conjunction.

Example: I ate raspberries.

Dependent Clause:

A dependent clause (also called a subordinate clause) is a group of words that has a subject and a verb and starts with a subordinating conjunction. A dependent clause cannot stand alone as a sentence.

Example: After I ate raspberries

Types of Sentences

Simple Sentence:

A simple sentence consists of one independent clause.

Example: I ate raspberries.

Compound Sentence:

A compound sentence consists of two or more independent clauses separated by a comma and a coordinating conjunction or by a semicolon.

Example: I ate raspberries, and I developed a rash.

Example: I ate raspberries; I developed a rash.

Complex Sentence:

A complex sentence consists of at least one dependent clause and one independent clause.

Example: Because I ate raspberries, I developed a rash.

Compound-complex Sentence:

A compound-complex sentence consists of at least two independent clauses and one or more dependent clauses.

Example: Although I am allergic to raspberries, I ate them, so I developed a rash.

Types of Pronouns

Indefinite Pronouns:

Indefinite pronouns do not refer to a definite person, place, object, idea, or emotion. Most indefinite pronouns are singular, so they require a third-person singular verb. A pronoun that refers to an indefinite pronoun that is singular is also singular.

Common Indefinite Pronouns

Always Singular

-one words

anyone everyone
no one one someone

-body words

anybody
everybody nobody somebody

-thing words

anything everything

something

other words

each either neither much

Always Plural

both few

many several

Singular or Plural

all	most
any	none
more	some

Miscellaneous Terms

Antecedent

An antecedent is the noun or pronoun to which a pronoun refers.

Example:

My cat hid under the bed when she had her kittens. (Cat is the antecedent of she; she is the antecedent of her.)

Modifier:

A modifier is a word that “describes” another word. It may be a single word or a phrase.

Examples:

I ate some delicious raspberries.

I ate some raspberries in the park.

I ate some raspberries that were really delicious.

Participle and participial phrase:

A participle is a form of a verb which is used as an adjective (descriptive word) or is part of a verb phrase. A participle cannot function alone as a main verb of a sentence or a clause. Verbs have two participles: present and past. The present participle ends in -ing. (loving, helping). The past participle of most verbs ends in -d, or -ed (loved, helped). The past participle of irregular verbs has different patterns (taken, been, ridden).

Examples:

Looking out the window, the smiling child waved to her mother.

The excited woman clutched her winning lottery ticket.

Caught in the act, the burglar surrendered to the police.

Predicate:

A predicate is the part of the sentence or clause, including the verb, that explains what the subject is or does.

Types of Conjunctions, Transitional Words and Transitional Phrases

Subordinating Conjunction:

A subordinating conjunction is a word that begins a dependent (subordinate) clause.

Common Subordinating Conjunctions

after	even if	since	when although	even though	so	whenever
as	how	so that	where as if	if	than	wherever
as soon as	in order that	that	while because	provided that	unless	why before	rather than	until

Coordinating Conjunction:

A coordinating conjunction connects words or word groups of the same kind: nouns, verbs, adverbs, adjectives, phrases, clauses, or whole sentences.

There are seven coordinating conjunctions. You can use the acronym FANBOYS to remember them.

For
And
Nor
But
Or
Yet
So

Conjunctive Adverb:

A conjunctive adverb is a transitional word or phrase that begins a sentence. It is part of the sentence it begins. Conjunctive adverbs are not conjunctions: they are adverbs. Conjunctive adverbs show relationships such as addition, cause and effect, comparison, contrast, emphasis, or time.

Common Conjunctive Adverbs

addition

also besides further in addition incidentally moreover

cause or effect

accordingly
as a result consequently therefore thus

comparison or contrast

however in comparison
in contrast instead likewise nevertheless nonetheless otherwise similarly

emphasis

certainly indeed in fact still undoubtedly

time

finally meanwhile next now
then

Correlative Conjunction:

A correlative conjunction is a two-part conjunction.

Common Correlative Conjunctions

as...as both...and just as...so neither...nor

not only...but also whether...or
